which he said a tariff that collected $140,000,000 would afford all the protection the industries of the country required. The Mills bill would collect $104,000,000; the Senate substitute for the Mills bill would collect $168,000,000, only $4,000,000 more, and yet the republicans say the Mills bill is a free trade bill!

From Washington

(Special Correspondence of the ALEX. GAZETTE.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23, 1888.

Among the strangers in the city to-day is Judge John T. Harris, one of the democratic electors at large for Virginia. The Judge, who has been canvassing extensively in his State, says the democrats there are in excellent condition and are sure to carry their State. When asked by the GAZETTE's correspondent if they were enthusiastic, he replied, not to the extent of a gush or over effervescence, but that they had quietly made up their minds to win, and would do so. He said that of his own personal knowledge he knew of no republicans who would vote the democratic ticket, but that there would be a full democratic vote, and that from all he heard and saw he was induced to believe that the democrats would not only carry the State, but do so by a good and square margin. Regarding the congressional elections in Virginia, he said he knew nothing more than any body else except of the Harrisonburg and Staunton districts, in both of which he was sure the democratic candidates would be elected. The Judge is in excellent health and spirits, and, judging from the way he talks, will be greatly disappointed if the democrats do not gain a decisive victory two weeks from to-day.

The Surgeon General's annual report is just out. According to it, the mean strength of negroes in the army during the year was 2,240. The ratio of death rate in the army per 1,000 was 7.55 white, and 10.71 colored.

The fall races commenced here to-day. The attendance and personnel of strangers are about the same as at the last spring races, and are composed apparently of men who follow up races from track to track. Notwithstanding the rain, a tolerably sized crowd was present, among whom, of course, were several Alexandrians, for wherever a crowd is assembled a resident of the ancient city can always be found.

Mr. Park Agnew, of Alexandria, the republican candidate for Congress in the 8th Virginia district, was here to-day. In response to questions by the GAZETTE's correspondent, he said he had recently canvassed most of his district, especially the western part of it, and had never received kinder and more hospitable treatment in his life, as well by political opponents as friends, and that no matter what the result of the canvass might be, he will never regret having made it. He had met Gen. Lee, he said, several times, and their meetings had always been agreeable, and that should the General be elected and he, Agnew, have any matter before Congress, he would have no hesitation whatever in asking the General to take charge of it, and was sure the General would give it as much attention as if the request were made by his most intimate political friend. Mr. Agnew said that he had found the party lines in his district pretty well drawn, and that if any democrats intend to vote for him they certainly had not informed him of that fact. He also said he had received no pecuniary assistance for campaign purposes from any source whatever, and had no expectation of receiving any. When the respondent remarked that with party lines tightly drawn and so many from either wing of the republican party given to him, his prospect for success, in view of the large democratic majority in the district, could not be very bright, he replied that he knew the odds were against him when he accepted the nomination, and therefore would not be disappointed if defeated, but that having entered the contest he was going to do the best he could to win, and that no matter how it might end, he was sure that so far as he was personally concerned, nothing would be said or done in it that would cost him the loss of the respect of a single man in the district.

Senator elect Barbour of Virginia, who is chairman of the democratic committee of his State, was seen here to-day. He says that letters from all parts of his State, and from the most reliable sources, are being constantly received at the democratic headquarters in Alexandria, and that from them and from private sources of information he is induced to believe that while there will be no overwhelming democratic victory in Virginia next month, the democrats there will gain a substantial and satisfactory success, and increase their congressional representation considerably. The re-election of Mr. Cleveland, he says, depends upon the vote of New York, not of Virginia, which is safe.

Letter From London.

(Correspondence of the Alexandria GAZETTE.)
LEESBURG, Va., Oct. 23, 1888.—Circuit Court is still in session but has not been marked by any case of special importance. The political cauldron is beginning to boil, and will likely be kept boiling until the 6th of November. Capt. J. W. Foster and C. P. Janney, esq., spoke at Lovettsville Saturday to a good audience; at night there was a joint discussion at Bethel between Capt. Foster for the democrats and Capt. C. P. McCabe, republican. There was a good crowd present and the best of feeling prevailed. We understand, however, that while the crowd was pretty evenly divided, Capt. Foster seemed to have the majority with him.

Our county chairman and Senator Heaton have about completed arrangements for a barbecue here on the 29th inst. Distinguished speakers will be here, and a series of meetings in different parts of the county will be held, winding up at Middleburg the night of the 31st proximo. Senator Heaton will be in immediate charge of the cavalcade from point to point, and will be accompanied by the Leesburg brass band with flying banners and suitable devices.

Meers, John V. Bassell, Chas. P. Janney and J. B. McCabe are to be detained for special work in other parts of the district. If the weather is propitious and the programme is carried out, London will give one of her old time majorities.

Mr. R. W. Moore, of Fairfax, delivered a most excellent speech last Friday night at the regular meeting of the Cleveland and Thurman club.

KILLED BY CIVIL SERVICE.—A sensational incident happened yesterday at the funeral services of C. S. Squiers, who was assistant postmaster at Chicago for nineteen years, after having worked his way up from errand boy in the postal service. Mr. Squiers was reduced not long ago to a chief clerkship, and subsequently suspended. His friends claim he died of a broken heart. The funeral took place with high Masonic honors. Dr. Lorimer pronounced the eulogy, and his eloquence had already greatly wrought the audience when he said: "I see in the dead before me the arraignment of civil service. I think as he lies there that he declares the failure of the system. Our ideal is still beyond our intellect, nor will justice and purity prevail in civil service until preferment shall be given upon a scale of talent and fitness." There was a moment of silence, and then the big church rang with an unrestrained outburst of applause.

In 1867, when the national debt was immense, and the other expenses of the government greater than now, Senator Sherman made a speech, in

[COMMUNICATED.]

Mr. Lewis McKenzie says that I am a foreigner, a music teacher, perambulating along the line of the W. & O. road, who knows nothing much about the United States except to bring my foreign notions over here. That Mr. McKenzie considers every democratic foreign born citizen of this country an ignoramus, is evident from the fact that he called me a deluded Dutchman in a street car in Washington, and in a sufficiently high tone to draw everybody's attention to me. That reminds me that in the State of Ohio, where citizens of my nationality generally vote the republican ticket, the republicans call them "our German fellow citizens," but when they vote the democratic ticket, they are suddenly transformed into "ignorant Dutchmen."

Mr. McKenzie, by his personal attack upon Gen. Lee, had drawn upon himself a retaliatory criticism and has no right to complain. As a citizen of this country I claim those equal rights about which his party is so eternally howling, and which it is so reluctant to grant to those of the opposing political faith. What my profession or my nationality has to do with my knowledge of the history of this country I cannot see; they certainly do not debar me from acquiring the information which every good citizen needs in order to vote intelligently, and I do not hesitate to assert that I can give a more intelligent reason for my faith than he can for his, judging at least from his speech at Hamilton. Mr. McKenzie also says that "the farmers of Loudoun were much pleased with the able address of Mr. Thomas, both white and colored." Now I should like to ask him whether he means that Mr. Thomas was both white and colored, or whether the address was both white and colored? Ignorant Dutchman that I am, I could have constructed a more intelligible English sentence than that, and I cease to wonder why Mr. McKenzie is in favor of the Blair educational bill. Respectfully,
E. L. S.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Richmond and West Point was again prominent in the stock market this morning. First prices were somewhat irregular, but generally lower, declines extending to 3/4 per cent., and further fractional losses were sustained over the whole list, which ranged up to 1/2 per cent. generally. The specially weak stock was Norfolk and Western preferred, which rapidly declined 1 1/4 per cent., though most of the loss was afterward regained, when the general list rallied. There was a sudden and complete revulsion in the temper of the market, and on a moderate business prices steadily rose until most of the list were small fractions above the opening figures. There was no further feature to the trading, and the market then became dull, and at 11 o'clock it was quiet and steady to firm, generally at slight fractions better than the opening prices. Money easy at 2 1/2%.
